

New Brunswick Human Rights Commission

Nathalie Chiasson

Focusing on pay equity

I'd like to address the issue about wage equity and the wage gap for women. Women are getting paid less in New Brunswick in certain areas and jobs that they're working at just because they're women. It's considered, maybe for them, supplementary revenue, but it's not. They have to provide for their families also. Sometimes they're single parents, and it's important that they get paid equally for the same type of work that they're doing as men.